

WELCOME TO THE 1928 WAGON RESTAURANT

Dear traveller,

We are on the French platform of Canfranc International Station, in an authentic sleeping car like the countless others that crossed these mountains to reach France, alongside freight trains, between 1928 and 1970.

The interior design is inspired by the luxury trains that travelled across Europe during the Roaring Twenties and the great journeys that lasted several days in search of unexpected landscapes and interesting encounters.

We will take you to a classic, everlasting restaurant furnished with tables that exude allure and have many stories to tell.

Our culinary concept showcases the cultural connection between France and Aragon.

URDOS CANFRANC

Before commencing the journey, simply choose one of the two itineraries:

It is the shortest route, an immersion in the gastronomic culture of the mountains surrounding the Somport Pass, on both sides.

LE GRAND VOYAGE

A tribute to the day that Canfranc Station was born and its neighbours. You will take the train on 18 July 1928 and travel across France for dinner in Paris.

Awaken all your senses, embrace the excitement and enjoy yourself in the company of the team.

ROUTE URDOS - CANFRANC

Urdos and Canfranc are the closest towns connected thanks to the railway line. This short route marked the beginning of a great cultural change that bound Spain and France. The mountain's residents on both sides gained wealth by sharing their histories, products, traditional recipes, top remedies and, above all, their love for the mountains, basking in an authentically Pyrenean way of life. This was the inspiration behind recreating this historical journey that you are now able to savour in the 1928 wagon restaurant. Across fewer kilometres and in less time, but featuring the most essential aspects.

ROUTE LE GRAND VOYAGE

The grand opening took place on 18 July 1928, and was attended by King Alfonso XIII and President of the French Republic Monsieur Gastón Doumergue. The joy people felt when sharing their history, preserving their value and consolidating their future is the inspiration behind this reinterpretation that is intertwined with our commitment to avant-garde and flavour.

There were daily trains to Paris as of that day, and the cultural fusion is represented in each station, inviting guests to discover the local cuisine and further enhance Aragon's traditions.
